According to Airports Council International World, there were nearly 4.5 billion global flight passengers in 2021, which was an increase of 25% from 2020, when the pandemic shut down air travel. The world’s ten busiest airports, representing about 10% of all global traffic, transported 463 million passengers in 2021, a 52% increase from 2020.

But air travel has changed considerably.
